(一) Autonomous vehicles replaces manned driving

As is depicted in the picture, the emerging auto-pilot technology has gradually achieved its replacement of manned driving. This cartoon reveals that in an age where new technologies emerge in an endless stream, human labor are likely to be displaced in the future by what we call artificial intelligence.

According to a survey, the public have adopted different attitudes towards the application of autonomous cars. Those who are in favor of it argues that auto-piloting will bring much efficiency for them such as saving their time, for they can deal with their work in the car without paying attention to the road conditions. While the opposing voices contend that the use of autonomous vehicles would deprive many bread-winners of their jobs such as taxi drivers or those chauffeurs.

It's actually difficult to determine whether the use of auto-pilot technology is good or not because there are definitely pros and cons concerning its application. However, personally speaking, I think its advantages outweigh its disadvantages as long as we can try to optimize its property to make it safer and more convenient for us in the future.

(二) Work or Education

It is inevitable that every college student will be confronted with a head-scratching puzzlement upon their graduation: whether to hunt for a job or to pursue further education in a graduate school. Students, of course, hold different opinions. Some choose to hunt for a job for the sake of being financially independent while others take the attitude that attending graduate school is instrumental for them to have access to a brighter future.

As for me, I prefer the latter. Even though hunting for a job outweighs further education in terms of having access to job experience, graduates with higher degree are more likely to cater to job market in the future. Undergraduates nowadays have difficulties in finding a decent job because those with Master or PhD degrees are competing for the same job vacancy. Hence, a higher education background would definitely earn you good impression on your future employer. Another important factor is that the number of graduate students is mounting up, including those overseas students coming back to china to seek job opportunities. While the job vacancies don't climb that fast, so those who have competitive edge are more likely to succeed.

Above all, it is high time that we took effective measures to improve our own competitiveness and having further education in graduate school is absolutely one possible choice.

(三) My hometown

My hometown Jiujiang is a livable city surrounded with lakes and mountains. If a foreign friend of mine is going to visit my hometown, I would like to take her to Lushan Mountain, a famous summer resort located in the northern part of Jiangxi province.

Here she will marvel at the exquisite and picturesque beauty of this famous mountain. She can take the cable car to the mountain top and overlook the panorama of the mountain foot while taking pictures of the beautiful scenery. Besides, they can taste the local cuisines like tea cake and drink famous Lushan Yunwu tea. There are a variety of mouth-watering snacks there.

Apart from the beautiful scenery and tasty food, she will also be attracted by the famous movie played on the mountain named "Romance on Lushan Mountain". It was shot at Lushan Mountain telling the love story of a couple and this film has the Longest First-Run of a Film in One Cinema. I believe my friend will have a great day if she visit Lushan Mountain.

(四) The increase of private car number

According to the figure in the graph, it can be seen that the number of private cars has been increasing rapidly from 3,9000 in February, 2018 to 21,4000 in December, 2018. Those aggravating traffic jams can serve as indication of the trend that more people are buying and driving their private cars.

In effect, a number of factors are accountable for this phenomenon. One of the most common reasons is that with the development of market-oriented economy, people earn more money than before, making it possible for them to afford a car or even several cars in one family. In addition, self-driving tour is enjoying great popularity among the public. People are eager to drive their own cars with their families and friends to travel with freedom without being subjected to the changeable timetables of public transportation. Last but not least, people nowadays have viewed cars and houses as symbols of success, so they are more likely to buy a car in order to prove themselves.

However, in view of the seriousness of the problem that more private cars on the road results in severer traffic congestion and safety hazards, effective measures must be taken by the related department to alleviate this situation.

(五) Advice for freshmen

Dear friend,

It's generally acknowledged that university life will serve as an important turning point in your life span. To make the best of your college life in order to enrich yourself and improve your competitiveness in the future, you can refer to the following suggestions.

A healthy physical condition will be the fundamental driving force for both your study and future work. So it is one of the priorities to do regular exercises such as jogging and swimming or taking part in outdoor activities with your classmates and friends.

Another thing you should keep in mind is that actively involving yourself in a range of contests and competitions is beneficial for you to explore your own strength and meanwhile to spot your weakness so that you can have access to possible solutions. Each opportunity to challenge yourself can be seen as preparation for the future competition in society so you would get the hang of good performance and being confident through those contests.

And finally, you should try to make full use of your college library. In addition to those professional books related to your major, you should also attach great importance to reading books of different themes such as literature, language, psychology and internet. You can make a reading list each semester according to your taste so as to cultivate yourself to be more knowledgeable, which is one of the indispensable quality for future competitors.

Yours sincerely,

Kristy

(六) Recruiting Volunteers

The student union is organizing a summer camp during the summer holiday and is now recruiting volunteers. This activity is meant to help participants, including both students and volunteers, to form a competitive edge over others when facing future challenge. Volunteers are expected to have the following qualifications.

The fundamental requirement of volunteers is familiarity with the theme and procedure of the this practice. We will depart next weekend when the summer vocation officially begins. And volunteers need to inform all the students of the departure involving in this practice. Other requirements include efficient communication ability, proper manners and sense of responsibility because volunteers will be in charge of the timetable and the safety of all the members. Priority and preference will be given to those experienced, either in organizing students' activities in school or other similar activities.

Those interested please contact us either through e-mail (XXX@163.com) or via phone number 12345678. We are really looking forward to your participation.

(七) On punctuality

When it comes to the topic of being on time, we are frequently told that, “Punctuality is a habit. It is a virtue.” It implies the great significance of being punctual in your daily life. What I learn from this remark is that being on time is beneficial for others as well as ourselves.

First and foremost, Forming the habit of being punctual would leave others an impression of good upbringing and would be more likely for you to obtain trust from your friends and partners because people are generally inclined to have confidence in punctual person. Meanwhile, punctuality shows your respect to others and those believing in you don’t need to be bothered with changing their schedule or plan, hence your interpersonal relationship would be improved to a large extent. Last but not least, punctuality would promote us to be more disciplined in our daily life and work so that we are capable of keeping our life in order even when we are confronted with more than one task in our job.

Actually, punctuality is essential for both individuals and the organizations as it can directly promote the rapid progress of individuals and organizations and indirectly spurs continuous development of the individuals, and eventually brings economic prosperity and social harmony.

(八) My view on Generational Relationship

The relationship between parents and children has come under heated discussion for it is widely accepted that it has gained growing concern among people in all walks of life. However, it is reported that conflicts between the two generations are mounting up in modern society.

The lack of efficient and effective communication between them is one of the direct contributors, whose improvement requires efforts of both sides. The younger generation should take the initiative to break the silence and bridge the gap once existed. Parents are getting old and unable to catch up with our steps. Thus, if we don't slow down our pace and be more patient to explain things to them, there will definitely be an invisible gap between us. As for parents, they should attach importance to the mental health of their children rather than merely focus on their academic or career development. And they should also learn to be more supportive and open-minded when communicating with their children so that children would be more likely to ask for advice from parents when they are confronted with difficulties and dilemmas.

From what has been mentioned above, we may safely draw the conclusion that we can free ourselves from generational conflicts by having effective communications between the two parties.

(九) The importance of cooperation

An old saying goes that "United we stand, divided we fall", which conveys the idea that the importance of cooperation can never be underestimated. It's actually the experience of our forefathers, however, It makes sense in many cases even today.

I don't doubt that cooperation is an efficient approach for people to achieve the best result, for example, in a certain competition or when they are dealing with difficulties in daily life. There is no denying that people would have their own abilities and personalities, therefore, through efficient cooperation which means that they can complement each other, they are more likely to succeed. Besides, in the course of cultivating people's sense of cooperation, they can also optimize what they are really good at and have others make up their limitations. Last but not the least, a range of activities and competitions cannot be achieved without cooperation among team members such as athletic sports which demand proficient collaboration.

In view of all factors, recognizing the importance of cooperation is crucial for every individual to pursue success. It is not only an indispensable quality in such a competitive society, but serves as an efficient instrument for individuals to achieve a well-round development with their partners.
